USS Alabama (SSBN 731) Demonstration and Shakedown Ops

There are many benefits to belonging to the Navy League. Even though Friday was the 13th, it was a lucky one for some of the Bremerton-Olympic Peninsula Council. We were invited to go to San Diego to observe a "Missile Shoot."

Upon checking into the hotel in San Diego on Thursday afternoon, we learned that it would be a DASO (Demonstration and Shakedown Operation) using a Trident II (D5) launched from the USS Alabama (SSBN 731), with a missile prepared at Bangor.

Family members of the crew, people who developed the missile & are in charge of the program, and Navy League invitees were among guests. Busses took about 140 people to the ship at the submarine base at Point Loma. We boarded the USNS Waters, a 457 ft ship used for mission support & tracking and were off to the Pacific well before dawn. They gave us a few briefings about what to expect, showed some short videos about the testing program, and took us on tours of some of the non-restricted areas. We were told that they have had 125 consecutive successful launches.

The Navy had an extensive brunch for us, and provided each small subgroup with a guide. An hour or so before launch, the Alabama came alongside, about 3-4,000 yards away, & held station for a half hour. It then submerged with a great rush of air from the ballast tanks, and the countdown began. It was exactly as we've all seen on television, but much more exciting when seen in person. The noise was incredible, even from 4,000 yards away. The overcast meant that we couldn't see the separation of the 1st & 2nd stages, but they did tell us that it was successful & within normal mission limits.

On the way home, we enjoyed a "steel beach picnic" and set up a BBQ on the rear deck of the ship. It was a full, tired and pleased group of people who got off of the USNS Waters after dark that evening, realizing that we had a rare opportunity to see a US Navy operation concluded very successfully. Congratulations to our Sailors.

President's Message

This month I would like to spend a few minutes on communications. Our Navy League mission statement, "The Navy League of the United States is a civilian organization dedicated to informing the American people and their government that the United States of America is a maritime nation and that its national defense and economic well being are dependent upon strong sea services – US Navy, US Marine Corps, US Coast Guard and US Merchant Marine." Your council attempts to inform the American people in several ways.

We conduct educational programs at our monthly luncheon meetings that are effective in informing our members as well as the general public that attend. We provide a council web site and a council newsletter, both intended to keep you informed of meetings, programs, events, and trips and tours of interest to you. We organize events such as the Lone Sailor statue, the Armed Forces Gala, and assist the Navy with events such as the recently completed Trident 1000th patrol celebration. We also educate the public through youth programs, Sea Cadets and NJROTC.

We think we are doing pretty good, but can we do better? What means of communication works best for you? Do you frequent our web site? Do you receive our electronic copy of the newsletter every month? Are you on our e-mail list so that you can receive notification of events that we didn't know about when the Newsletter was written? If you have ideas to help us improve our communications and/or can assist us in doing so, please contact me or any member of our board.

Remember to mark your calendars for the Armed Forces Gala on Saturday, May 16, and the dedication ceremony for the Lone Sailor statue on Saturday, May 23.

Thank you for your support of Navy League and our Sea Services.

Dave Thomas

BROLPN Travels to Washington DC to Visit Members of Congress

Grass Roots Presentations to our Members of Congress are still the priority of the Legislative Affairs Committee. We will be traveling to Washington DC in hopes of meeting with Senators and Representatives from the NW Region.

We need to let the Members of Congress know our desire for strong Sea Services including a Fleet size of no less than 313 ships. We are awaiting the new Maritime Policy to be updated. "The Nation's imperative must be to ensure the Maritime Services have the equipment, personnel and realistic training needed to fight and win in major combat operation." From: 2009-09 Maritime Policy Statement Navy League of the United States.

Please go to the National web site and see what is available– www.navyleague.org. With all of our members watching this site and helping to contact our Members of Congress, we have a good chance to reach them so they know our wishes to keep our Sea Lanes open and free as well as funding the needed ships, material and supplies.

Northwest Navy Notes: March 2009

A Legacy of Readiness

By Rear Adm. James A. Symonds, Commander, Navy Region Northwest

March is an important month in Naval history. On March 9, 1847, our Navy completed its first large amphibious operation in Vera Cruz, Mexico, landing over 10,000 Soldiers, Sailors, and Marines on a hostile shore without a single fatality. On March 8, 1854, Commodore Matthew Perry opened trade negotiations between the United States and Japan. On March 25, 1898, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Theodore Roosevelt proposed that the Navy investigate the military application of Samuel Langley's flying machine, thus beginning naval aviation. And in that same month, USS Holland, the first practical submarine, was launched.

In March, 2009, it's certainly appropriate for all of us at Navy Region Northwest to be grateful to the Navy Sailors of the Nineteenth Century for their pioneering efforts in war, peace, and technology. I believe the most sincere and valuable way we can demonstrate that thanks is by improving on the phenomenal groundwork they laid for us. All around our Navy and our Region I see that happening.

Implementing the Fleet Response Plan (FRP) is one of the most effective ways we're maintaining our readiness, and living up to the high standards set for us more than a century ago. Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral Gary Roughead, recently commented on what the FRP has done for the Navy: "Under the Fleet Response Plan, Sailors have taken our Navy from a force that on September 10th, 2001 could only deliver two carrier strike groups, to the force that today can deploy three carrier strike groups, surge three in 30 days, and have one more CSG on its way in 90 days. The incredible flexibility this gives to the combatant commanders and the agility it gives to the Commander in Chief are national assets that must be resourced as such."

At every base around our Region, I see the Northwest Team working to retain that flexibility and responsiveness. We're providing first-class support to our Sailors and their families, and we're maintaining the Navy's finest ships, aircraft, and submarines. Right now our aircraft carrier, USS JOHN C. STENNIS (CVN 74), and our Prowler squadron, the Yellow Jackets of Electronic Attack Squadron (VAQ) 132 are at sea – flexible, mission-tailored forces ensuring the nation is prepared for the inevitable crises that require the supremacy of naval aviation. Surface combatants like our currently deployed USS RODNEY M. DAVIS (FFG 60) are ready with the flexibility to carry out missions across the spectrum of capabilities. Our Everett-based destroyers and frigates are multi-purpose - they can quickly transition from delivering Tomahawk missiles to delivering humanitarian aid in the midst of conflict and disaster, and their utility stretches out over decades.

While it is difficult to predict the future, we know there will always be forces that threaten the sovereignty of peaceful nations, and that disasters, natural and manmade, will affect us and our allies. The Fleet Response Plan ensures that the Navy is ready to respond when and where we're needed.

This month, as in every month, the Navy Region Northwest Team is implementing the FRP, keeping our Navy ready for war, committed to peace, and a leader in technological innovation. We have a responsibility to those who came before, and a responsibility to future generations so that they can look back on March, 2009 and be grateful to us for the Navy we gave them.

Meet Your Board Members

Johann Schoberl

Meet Johann Schoberl, the newest board member of the Bremerton-Olympic Peninsula Council.

Johann, born in Darmstadt-Arheilgen, W. Germany, immigrated to the US in 1965. For the most part, he grew up in the great state of Florida, and claims Jacksonville as his hometown.

Upon graduation from a parochial high school, he entered the United States Navy and attended basic training in Orlando. During his first four years in the service, he worked as a Jet Engine Mechanic stationed in Key West. In 1982, he became a naturalized citizen. During his first reenlistment, he changed his profession and became a submarine hunter. As a 'Hydro-Acoustic Engineer', he flew in the Lockheed Martin S-3A/B Viking and P-3C aircrafts. He also served onboard the USS Nimitz (CVN-68), USS Constellation (CV-64), and USS Carl Vinson (CVN-70) aircraft carriers. Proudly he claims, "I am a retired United States Naval Aircrewman!" After twenty-years of service, in 2000, he transferred to the Fleet Reserve.

Currently he works as a contracted Field Engineer with Raytheon and teaches a web-based product to our active duty military personnel. He also tests and evaluates developed web-based courseware. His line of work provides him an exciting opportunity to install local area networks, develop and host websites, and dabble in graphic design technology.

He holds a BS degree in Professional

Aeronautics with a minor in Aviation Business Administration (ABA) from Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University (ERAU), Daytona Beach, Florida. Currently, Johann is a graduate student with the University of Phoenix pursuing an Information Systems degree. He holds two certifications, Web Technologies and Web Programming. He is a qualified Master Training Specialist and a Six Sigma Specialist.

On the personal side, he enjoys spending quality time with his family, and has three children (all grown and married). In 2007, he and his wife became new grandparents. He loves to golf, enjoys riding his Honda Goldwing and camping in the 5th wheel.

Johann likes being involved within the community. He is a Past Worthy President (PWP) from the Fraternal Order of Eagles (FOE), Port Orchard. For the past three years, he has been the company Veteran's Group President. He is active in church leadership as the Chairman of the Board. Johann has been a member of the Navy League since the fall of 2006. He says he looks forward to the "adventure" of new things which everyday brings.

Gone, But Not Forgotten

Membership Committee Solicits Help from Council Members

Membership Services prime role is to serve current members and promote retention. This is a huge and important task and we only began to scratch the surface of what could and should be done in this area. The challenge is to meet the needs of the membership. We need to identify those needs.

Approximately 1 out of 55 of our members attend our monthly luncheons. We held two After Work Socials last year and they were well attended by our Board Members and a few others. How do we get more members and guests to attend? How do we get new members involved? How do we encourage all of our members to participate at some level? We have talked about a new member interest survey, but what should it include? How do we let our members know of services available to them? Do we have a clear idea of our expectations of community affiliates? Do we know enough about their interests and needs? These are just some of the questions that need to be addressed.

We are looking to our Membership on some of these issues and would like to know how we can best meet the needs of our members so that we can continue to be the biggest and best in the Northwest. If you would like to be on the Membership Committee or just have some ideas for the committee, please contact Carolyn Dankers, Mark Lowe or any Board Member.

Dave Thomas welcomes EHT Enterprises, Inc. and President Annalee Todd as a new Community Affiliate with the presentation of a Navy League plaque.
